Quatuor Avena

Fri 5 April - Arts Theatre

The Quatuor AVENA was born in 2016 after four young saxophonists, each one from a different part of the world (Italy, Japan, France and South Africa) met for their musical studies in Strasbourg at the Haute Ecole des Arts du Rhin. Their pleasure and passion for playing together in chamber music brought them together for a new adventure which has since turned into the Quatuor AVENA. Given their different social and musical backgrounds, the four young musicians set about working on a repertoire rich in variety, from Baroque transcriptions to contemporary music, adding in music from around the globe along the way and even bringing in jazz standards, they have explored the potential of the saxophone quartet formation, and are now considered one of Europe's most vibrant and talented young saxophone quartets

Little Winds Quintet

Sat 8 June - George Museum

This is a varied and entertaining selection of chamber music of different genres ranging from Classical and Romantic to Modern masterworks. The group consists of a flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and French horn, and because of the very individual characters of these instruments, the quintet is very stylistically versatile and can produce a vast range of sound colours. The programme will be appealing, and full of lush melodies and skilful instrumentation, showing off some of the very best of the music in the wind quintet repertory. Led by clarinettist, David Little, the musicians have performed together many times over the past few years in various orchestral and chamber music capacities, and particularly in the wind quintet format.
